An Acceptable Clock.

A well known professor sometimes became so much interested in his lecture that when the noon bell rang he kept the class five of ten minutes over the hour. Certein restless spirits among the students thought they would give him a gentle hint, so they bought an alarm clock, set it to go off precisely at noon and placed it on the professor's desk when they came in to the next lecture. They knew that he was a little absentminded and expected that he would not notice it. As the noon hour struck the slarm went off with a crash, and those of the class not in the secret started and took in the joke at once. There was a round being constructed by a Chicago firm of applause. The professor waited un- for the Southern Railway at Pelham. til the alarm and the applause were N. C. Fooling the Beans.

A Yankee of the quaint old time type was preparing to bestow a coat of whitewash on his henhouse one spring fong ago. He had completed the mixing of the whitewash, a writer in the Manchester Union says, and, looking round for something on which to try ft, picked up a bean pole and ran the brush over it. Another local character, who was driving by, stopped his horse and called out: "Hello! What ye whitewashing your bean poles for?" "Thought everybody knew that beans

"Mebbe not, but whitening of 'em 'll make the beans think the poles are birch anyhow."

Origin of Cometerles. In ancient times burials were always outside the walls of a city or town. Indeed, before the time of Christianity it was not lawful to bury the dead within the limits. About the end of the sixth century St. Augustine obtained of King Ethelbert a temple of idols -used by the king before his conversion-and made a burying place of it, yards made to the churches suitable for the burial of the dead.
